Work From Home Policy

Document Type: Company Policy
Version: 1.0
Effective Date: September 1, 2026

1. Purpose

This policy defines the guidelines for employees who are permitted to work from home. The purpose is to provide flexibility while maintaining productivity, communication, security, and accountability.

2. Eligibility

Employees may work from home when their role and responsibilities allow remote work. Approval from the appropriate department manager may be required.

3. Working Hours

Employees working from home are expected to follow their normal working hours unless an alternative schedule has been approved by their manager.

Employees should remain available through the company's approved communication channels during working hours.

4. Communication

Employees must regularly communicate with their team and attend scheduled meetings while working remotely.

Important updates, tasks, and work-related discussions should be shared through approved company communication systems.

5. Data Security

Employees must protect company information while working from home.

Confidential company documents should not be shared with unauthorized individuals. Employees should use approved devices, applications, and secure network connections when accessing company information.

6. Equipment

Company-provided laptops and other equipment must be handled carefully and used primarily for authorized business purposes.

Any equipment issue should be reported to the appropriate department as soon as possible.

7. Performance and Accountability

Employees are responsible for completing assigned tasks and meeting agreed deadlines while working from home.

Managers may monitor work progress through regular meetings, task updates, and project tracking.

8. Policy Compliance

All employees working from home must follow company policies, security requirements, and applicable workplace procedures.

Failure to follow these requirements may result in appropriate administrative action.

9. Review

This policy may be reviewed and updated periodically to reflect changes in company requirements.
